

Please allow me to offer my support on RM-10786. The maintenance of morse proficiency as a requirement for amateur radio licensure is no longer consonant with the purpose of the amateur radio Service and serves no legitimate regulatory purpose. The FCC would take a wise and prudent course of action in eliminating Morse proficiency requirements. Such action will remove an unnecessary and restrictive burden which has already been determined to lack comportment with the purposes of Amateur Radio Service and can serve no real regulatory purpose. Thank you.
